

Joana's dream

On a beautiful island surrounded by clear turquoise seas lived Joana, a ten-year-old girl with a boundless imagination. Every evening she lay down in bed, closed her eyes and drifted into dreams filled with fantasy and adventure.

One special night, Joana found herself in a different world: an enchanted garden where flowers spoke in musical voices, trees danced in the breeze and magical animals played among the rose bushes. Bright colours and gentle sounds filled the air. It was a place where anything seemed possible.

As she explored, Joana met Azur, a magical bird with shimmering feathers. He had lost his special song, and without it he could no longer fly freely through the garden skies.

Determined to help her new friend, Joana set out to find the missing melody. Along the way they met extraordinary creatures who offered help and thoughtful advice.

The moon hare, with silvery fur and wise eyes, told them:

"Listen to your heart. It can help you find what is true."

Her words encouraged Joana to trust her feelings and pay attention to her instincts.

The flower dragon, a magnificent creature whose tail looked as though it were made of rose petals, challenged them to solve a magical puzzle.

“To discover a hidden secret, keep an open mind and let your imagination guide you,” he said.

The rose fairies had wings as delicate as spider silk and voices as soft as the breeze. They whispered:

“Hope is a light that shines along the darkest paths. Never lose sight of it.”

The maze of forgotten dreams

Their greatest challenge was the maze of forgotten dreams. It was a world of its own, with passages that kept changing and illusions that confused the senses. Joana remembered the advice she had received. She listened to her heart, used her imagination to see beyond appearances and held on to hope even when the way ahead seemed difficult.

Little by little, she realised that the walls reflected her own fears and doubts. Instead of running from them, she stopped to understand them. With Azur beside her and her confidence growing, she found the right path.

Beyond the exit lay the missing melody. Azur began to sing and spread his wings. At last he could fly again, filling the sky with beautiful music.

Joana understood that friendship, confidence and perseverance could help her face problems that had once seemed far too big.

Back in the real world, she woke with a smile. The memory of her adventure would encourage her for a long time to come.

This story reminds us to ask for help, listen to our feelings and keep trying. With friends beside us and hope in our hearts, we can find our way towards our dreams.